Select Wall Street Research Updates and Commentary

Update from Credit Suisse, February 2020

Card Growth More Or Less The Same, No Noticeable Acceleration Yet: EOP Domestic Card loans grew 10% y/y to $115.5 Bn, a 5 bps deceleration from December. Growth is tracking ~2 ppt below our 1Q estimate of 12.6%. Credit Continues To Be Very Healthy, 1Q Losses Tracking Significantly Below (Better Than) Estimate: Delinquencies in January were down 6 bps y/y. COF no longer discloses the impact of the Walmart portfolio on delinquency, though we believe the y/y change continues to indicate solid trend. Accelerating Growth in Auto, Credit Solid: Auto loans grew 8% y/y (111 bps m/m acceleration) to $60.9 Bn. Growth has been rebounding considerably for a while now. Bottom Line: credit quality continues to be very solid. Auto loan growth is strong. That said, card loan growth continues to be below our estimate. We maintain our estimates and OP rating. Risks to our thesis include higher reserve build.

Update from Morgan Stanley, February 2020

We believe LendingClub's planned acquisition of Radius will be a watershed moment both for its trajectory as a business (given its nearly complete strategy shift towards actual marketplace banking), as well as for the broader fintech banking-related space as its peers and investors monitor the success (or lack thereof) of this move. As we stated at the time of the announcement (here), it certainly could be the singular step needed to give LC its stated strategic and financial goals (such as recapturing economics in the ecosystem and allowing for more diversified earnings streams).

Update from Credit Suisse, March 2020

Nelnet reiterated that they filed an application for a Utah industrial bank with plans to take online deposits and offer private student loans. We are interested in the project's level of investment, upfront and ongoing. We also note that NNI extended the maturity and size of one of their credit facilities and ask whether they plan to make more refi or consumer loans. Reiterating that they are making CapEx over buybacks, in 2019 management invested $103mm into venture capital, solar, and real estate and we are curious whether they will continue to spend ~4% of equity on unique projects. Regarding telecommunications, Allo is considering expansion to certain mid-west communities and they recently announced they will enter Imperial Nebraska. They expect 2020 CapEx of $35-$45mm. Last, we are attentive to Hudl's valuation and any plans for an exit.

Update from Credit Suisse, February 2020

Still Good Growth But Decelerated From Last Month: Card loans grew 5.4% y/y (48 bps deceleration from December) to $75.9 Bn. Growth in 1QTD is tracking below our estimate for the quarter of 6%. Mgmt mentioned at a conference last year that DFS has been taking some risk off, partly through cutting back on line increases for existing accounts. Maintain Estimates and Reiterate Outperform. In summary, continued good growth (though decelerating) and stable credit quality (consistent with mgmt's view that delinquencies have largely stabilized) support our view of continued strength in U.S. consumer. The focus in 2020 will be on DFS' heavy spending plan. No change to our estimates, target price and Outperform rating.

Update from Oppenheimer, February 2020

TREE filed an 8-K with new Revenue/Contribution-Profit Segment disclosures in Home, Consumer, Insurance, and Other. We update our model's revenue/VMM drivers to conform with new disclosures but leave our '20E/'21E total revenue/EBITDA largely unchanged. We believe the new operating segments will allow investors to better gauge MLT's impact on overall margins and the underlying health of TREE's products. Key takeaways from new disclosures are: 1) Insurance is generating 40% segment margins that we expect to remain relatively stable; 2) Consumer margins declined ~700bps in 2Q:19/3Q:19 on CC&PL competition; and 3) Home margins are improving on better refinance trends. TREE reports 4Q results (2/25 BTO), and we expect limited change to FY outlook compared to its 12/11/19 Investor Day. Maintain Outperform and $380 PT.
